

Nessen appears in TV show spoofing Ford and others

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — I fear the White House is swamped today by outraged telegrams and inquiries from the Spanish government. And Russia must be wondering if the White House has, well, "gone bananas."

You see, Ron Nessen, President Ford's spokesman, appeared on NBC's late-night "Saturday Night" comedy show to host proceedings that were rowdy and harrumph, harrumph, often tasteless in the best "Saturday Night" tradition.

Not only that, Ford, appearing in film clips, introduced Nessen and the show and popped up in its "Update" news segment to say, "Good evening. I'm Gerald Ford and you're not."

Shortly after that, former NBC newsmen Nessen appeared in a skit in which he played a spokesman for the late Generalissimo Franco of Spain.

He told a reporter that "the generalissimo's condition is still very grave, but — and I would like to emphasize this — it is stable at this time." Pressed to admit that Franco was quite dead, he added, "I didn't say that he wasn't dead. I just said he was stable."

Nessen, on leave from the White House, if not his senses, for the show, proved an adept monologist and skit actor, doing particularly well in an Oval Office skit in which actor

Chevy Chase played President Ford.

Despite Nessen's presence, Ford got no mercy. The skit poked fun at his alleged clumsiness, questioned his intelligence and even obliquely brought up his controversial pardon of former President Richard Nixon.

In asking permission to appear on "Saturday Night," Nessen said it would show that Ford has a sense of humor. He also noted that Nixon went on "Laugh-In" in 1968 to say "sock it to me" and, said Nessen, "That may have made the difference in the election."

Chase-Ford: "But he won, didn't he?" Told yes, Chase-Ford observed: "Well, he was funny then and he's funny now.... That's why I gave him a break."

As Chase-Ford bumped and stumbled about the office, stapled his ear and put on his old football helmet, Nessen gave him the next morning's schedule: "... At 7:05 you break the water glass by the sink ... then at 7:12 you tumble down the stairs...." Nessen wisely stayed out of the more outrageous acts, but he did do a few more press secretary skits, appearing in one in a toga to make this announcement for his boss, Oedipus, the lad who liked his mommy: "From now on the queen mother will be referred to as the queen wife...."

At the start of his show-opening monologue, Nessen halted to take a bogus collect call from Ford, whom he was joshing at the time.

"You heard the monologue?" Nessen asked. "And you had it explained to you? Betty thinks it's funny? Good. I'm fired?" Leave us hope not. Last Saturday's show was good, bizarre fun and showed the man in the White House might be a good deal hipper than anyone ever suspected.

And any controversy it caused probably will be overshadowed when an even more prominent White House figure hosts next week's show — the late Millard Fillmore.

Flood danger not over in Minot

MINOT, N.D. (AP) — Flooding danger is far from over, city officials warned Minot residents today, even though the level of the Souris River has begun dropping slowly.

The 12,000 persons evacuated from their homes last week are being told it may be two weeks before they can return.

The river, which crested Sunday at seven feet above flood stage, is expected to continue with peak flows of 10,000 cubic feet per second for several days and to remain above normal until mid-May. The river was dropping at an average of .01 inches every two hours, the National Weather Service said.

The crest was one foot lower than had been feared. Emergency dikes as high as 25 feet were credited with helping prevent the fifth flood in seven years in low-lying sections of the city.

As workers continued to sandbag dikes to prevent erosion and seepage, officials expressed concern that residents would believe the danger was past and the supply of volunteer dike-watchers, sandbaggers and security patrols would dwindle.

"People — get complacent," said city engineer Burt Peckham. "That's what bothers us. 'We're a long way from the end of the critical part of this. If we get a foot or two of drop, then we can breathe.'"

City Manager John Arnold said, "The prognosis is still danger for at least another week. The longer the water is high, the more likely we are to have street and yard boils."

Crash near Mendota claims 5

MENDOTA, Ill. AP — Five persons were killed late Sunday when their car overturned at a high rate of speed and was struck by another auto traveling in the opposite direction.

State police identified the dead as Javier Algria, 24, Margarito Ruvalcaba, 46, Jorge Mundujano, 23, and Rigoberto Flores-Felix, 24, all of Mendota; and Jose Praderes, 21, of San Benito, Tex.

The accident occurred on U.S. 51 about an eighth of a mile south of Mendota.

Mendota Police Officer James Nurnberg said he spotted the car running a stop sign and gave pursuit when the accident occurred.

It was not determined who was driving the car in which the five men were killed. The car was southbound on the highway when it reportedly crossed the center lane.

A car driven by James Rindahl, 23, of Cambridge, Wis., hauling a trailer, swerved to avoid the auto but the car carrying the fatality victims struck the trailer and flipped on its side, authorities said.

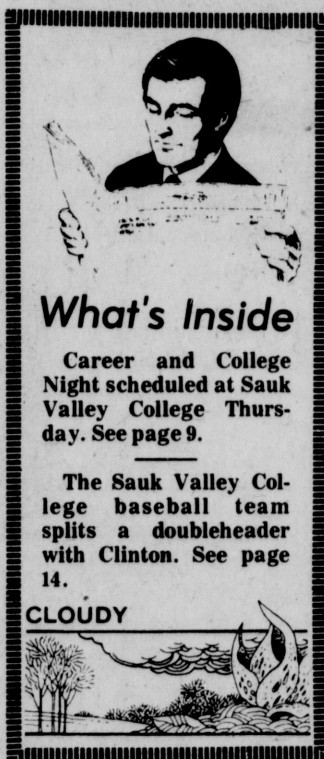

A third car driven by James Ryder, 23, of Rockford, then smashed into the roof of the car as it overturned.

Driver hurt as high-speed chase ends in accident

OREGON — "He accelerated and started to drive crazy," a Mt. Morris youth told Ogle County Sheriff's deputies following a high speed chase which ended in injury to the driver, David D. Duncan, 24, Mt. Morris.

Lt. Richard Wilkinson was removing cattle which had walked onto Mud Creek Road, near Mt. Morris, when he said, the driver of a 1973 Corvette drove by him at a high rate of speed, nearly hitting him.

Wilkinson took up pursuit with his squad car and when Duncan saw him he turned his car around and drove toward the squad car, forcing it off the road. The sports car struck a guard rail, went into a ditch and continued on. Again Wilkinson took pursuit to a point on Leaf River Road, one mile north of

Killed after holding plane hostages 7 hours

DENVER (AP) — A gunman who held two hostages on a private airplane for seven hours was shot and killed by FBI agents early today as he boarded a jet he thought was to fly him to Mexico, an FBI spokesman said.

Ted Rosack, special agent in charge of the Denver FBI office, said Roger Lyle Lentz, 31, was killed shortly after midnight, ending an episode that began in Grand Island, Neb., and included two separate flights over Colorado aboard the commandeered private plane.

Neither hostage — pilot Robert Blair and mechanic Harlan Hiller, both of Grand Island — was hurt during the seven hours they spent in the Piper Navaho with the gunman or in the gunfire aboard the commercial jet, Rosack said.

"The subject came up the ramp with his hostages, ducked into the galley, and when agents aboard the plane properly identified him, was shot," Rosack said. "One of the agents said he believed the subject fired one shot, but we're still investigating that."

The shooting was aboard a Convair 990, a four-engine jet owned by Ports of Call Travel Club, a local airline. It was the second jet prepared for Lentz, who earlier rejected a DC8 trainer owned by United Airlines for the flight he demanded to Mexico.

Rosack said Lentz, who faced charges at home including vehicular homicide and larceny, was involved in a gunfight earlier Sunday with authorities in Grand Island.

He went to the Grand Island airport, carried a .22-caliber revolver and a .410 shotgun aboard the Navaho and ordered Blair to take off, Rosack said.

He said Hiller was in the airplane because he had just finished servicing it for flight.

After arriving at Denver's Stapleton International Airport, the plane sat on a runway while FBI agents tried to talk Lentz into surrendering, Rosack said. He demanded a Boeing 747, then a Boeing 737, then any type of commercial aircraft to fly him to Mexico, Rosack said.

The FBI agent said the plane took on fuel after 3½ hours on the ground, then inexplicably took off, circled the airport for about a half-hour and landed. It was refueled and took off again.

During the second flight, Blair got clearance to land at Casper, Wyo., about 250 miles north of Denver, but just north of Greeley, Colo., 50 miles north of Denver, the plane turned back and returned to Stapleton.

Rosack said it was uncertain why Lentz took over the plane in Nebraska, but the FBI agent said he assumed the gunman wanted to leave the country to escape prosecution on the Nebraska charges.

Reporters were not allowed to talk with the pilot and mechanic. They were interviewed into the morning by FBI agents.

Rosack said both hostages were "in close proximity" to Lentz when he was shot.

SNIPER SUSPECT— John E. Williams, 19, is led away by two Baltimore policemen following a nighttime shooting in neighborhood just southwest of downtown. One policeman was killed and five others wounded in the hour-long exchange of gunfire. Williams was blood-splattered but not seriously injured. He was charged early with murder and the state's attorney said a death-penalty indictment may be sought. (AP Wirephoto)

Man braves sniper fire to rescue wounded policeman

BALTIMORE (AP) — "I can't see nobody in that situation doing anything different," said Leroy Baldwin, who drove his van truck between a sniper and police to rescue a patrolman lying wounded in the crossfire.

Baldwin, 51, and his wife were en route to visit their daughter Friday night when they came upon the sniper perched in a third-floor window of a Lombard Street rowhouse and a line of police officers across the street.

Shortly before the Baldwins arrived at the bullet-sprayed intersection, the sniper began taking shots at passing cars and a police cruiser. The besieged officers radioed for help and the Baldwins were trapped by responding police units and the gunman.

The couple said that while huddled on the floor of the van they saw officer James A. Brennan wounded by three shots and his partner, officer James D. Halcomb, die after being hit in the neck with a single shot.

Police tried to reach the wounded officer but were driven off by the sniper's bullets.

Baldwin, who was told by police he didn't have to do it, drove his produce delivery van into the intersection while 200 policemen provided covering fire. Crouching under the steering wheel, he pulled the van alongside Brennan long enough to get him inside and then drove the wounded officer out of the range of fire.

The 51-minute gun battle with the sniper left four other policemen and a bystander wounded.

John E. Williams, 18, was charged with one count of murder and one count of assault in connection with the incident.

Baldwin said his rescue effort "was the first time anything like this ever happened to me, and I hope like hell it's the last."

Soviet trick hampers Egypt

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

The Soviet has put Egyptian President Anwar el-Sadat over the barrel for revoking the friendship treaty. There is no bottom to the Kremlin bag of tricks and this particular Soviet trick involves spare parts.

Sadat has privately informed Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger that it was one thing for him to revoke the Soviet friendship treaty but quite another to live with the results. Beware the cobra.

The Soviet borrowed its trick straight from the Nazis. Berlin used this little-known spare parts trick in World War II to keep Turkey neutral.

The Nazis had previously installed in Turkey a large amount of military equipment, many railroad locomotives, irrigation pumps, etc. All required spare replacement parts or Turkey would collapse. The Nazis stalled and stalled in supplying these. They fed Turkey through a replacement parts cage.

The Kremlin adopted this Nazi trick and first applied it when Soviet-supported Indonesian President Sukarno was thrown out. Indonesia's armed forces were Soviet-equipped and Sukarno's ships, artillery, trucks, etc. rusted there, starved for Soviet spare parts. Sukarno's successors' military power ground to a halt.

About 90 per cent of Sadat's military equipment is Soviet-made. It's ideal for the Soviet trick. Nothing runs without replacement parts. For example, it is simply impossible to use an English camshaft in a Russian-built engine, American or West German blades in a Russian turbofan, French circuit-breakers in a Russian dynamo, etc. The key to Egypt's military effectiveness is spare replacement parts. Accordingly, Egypt's military effectiveness is weaker than we know.

Sadat revealed that Egypt now has about 250 Russian MIG-21s on hand, 25 MIG-23s and two high-altitude reconnaissance aircraft, which the Russians call the X-500, installed on Egypt's Janaklis and Beni Suef air bases in the desert near Alexandria. All, of course, require engine-maintenance. But the Kremlin has withdrawn some 200 Soviet technicians and the Soviet spare parts trick is simultaneously lethal.

Starved for replacement parts, The Egyptian air force has been forced to drastically reduce its flying time. It faces two or three years of absolute inferiority to Israel's air force.

The Chinese government has agreed to supply 30 engines for Egypt's 25 MIG-23s, and India in turn manufactures MIG-21s. Sadat said he sought spare parts in India and Prime Minister Indira Gandhi agreed to supply them.

But Soviet subservient Mrs. Ghandi had given the Soviet KGB the run of India and it reported to the Kremlin her agreement. The Soviet Ambassador to New Delhi promptly arrived, his teeth bared like an outraged orangutan. He read the riot act to Mrs. Ghandi and she refused to sell Egypt the spare parts.

Yugoslavia has 110 MIG-21s and its arms industry manufactures many spare replacement parts for these to remain militarily independent of the U.S.S.R. When Sadat left for West Germany, France, Austria, Italy and Yugoslavia he informed Mr. Kissinger that his Yugoslav trip was largely in the hope of obtaining these parts.

The Soviet applies the same spare parts trick to Egypt's Russian-built surface-to-surface and surface-to-air missiles, tanks, artillery, communications systems, radar, mobile search-radar mounted on tractor-treads, etc. Spare replacements parts largely cripple them today.

Moreover, Sadat pointed out that Egypt's pilots, tank crews, missile teams and whatnot are trained on Russian equipment. He said it would take at least two years to retrain them on new equipment even if he could eventually obtain it in Britain, France, Japan, the United States or West Germany.

Behind the scenes, Defense Minister Mohammed Abdel Ghany el-Gamasy, famous in Egypt as the lieutenant general who negotiated with Israel the first troop disengagement at Kilometer 101, is interested in France's MIRAGE F-1s to replace Russia's MIG-21s, trainer aircraft, helicopters and air-to-air missiles and in Britain its Jaguar striker planes. He is also interested in buying America's F-16 fighter, which is not yet in production, and our F-5E jet fighters, Tow wire-guided antitank missile and antiaircraft systems.

Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and other oil-rich Arab countries are backing Sadat for the purchases, cash on the barrel head. But without spare parts for Egypt's Russian-built equipment and new foreign purchases since Sadat revoked the Soviet friendship treaty it is hard to see how Egypt can redress its military inferiority and advance toward peace in the Middle East.

Australia gets tough with its jobless

CANBERRA (LENS)—Dole bludgers, beware. Malcolm Fraser's Liberal-County party government in Australia has announced that it is going to make life difficult for people abusing the right to unemployment assistance.

The word "bludger" originally meant someone who lived on the earnings of a harlot, but for a century or so it has been used in Australia to describe any lazy fellow who imposes on others. Before last December's election there had been a considerable outcry about young men and women who preferred the dole to looking for work.

The Fraser government has not reduced the rates of benefit fixed by Gough Whitlam's previous Labor government, which in any event are not very high by the standards of West European countries. Instead, it has placed more restrictions on those who draw the dole.

The waiting time before receiving benefit has been extended from two weeks to six. Nobody who is voluntarily unemployed can receive it. The definitions of suitable employment have been widened, and people can be refused the dole if they unreasonably decline to travel away from their homes, or if they have turned up for job appointments unsuitably dressed and generally scruffy.

These changes may not make much difference to the general rate of unemployment, which is still around the 5 per cent mark, but they will certainly mask or remove some of the more flagrant cases of indolence—which is what those who complained probably wanted. The attack on dole bludgers is in line with a sort of conservative puritanism which is emerging as the distinguishing mark of the Fraser government.

Fraser has already said that his first budget, due in a few months' time, will be a tough one.

Record setter

Another ruling on death penalty due

WASHINGTON (LENS)—Landmark as it was in some ways, the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the case of Furman vs. Georgia in 1972 did not settle the future of capital punishment, but postponed settlement. So the subject has come back to trouble the court this spring. Oral arguments were heard two weeks ago and a decision is expected in May or June.

Divided then as it is today, the court in 1972 refused to pronounce the death penalty constitutional or unconstitutional in itself. The justices found the penalty indefensible because of the random and unpredictable manner in which the existing laws applied it. This left it apparently open to the states and the federal government to reinstate capital punishment if they could find ways to codify its application which would satisfy the court.

Thanks in part to pressure from public opinion, in part to a special effort by the National Association of Attorneys General to advise the states on how to go about it, 35 states have since passed new laws.

The last official execution in the United States was carried out in Colorado in 1967. Most of the 631 men and women who were awaiting execution at the moment of the Furman ruling have since had their sentences changed to imprisonment for life or a lesser term. Under the new or revised laws, however, sentences of death have gone on being imposed, and 529 people are under sentences of death at the present moment. This raises a ghastly theoretical prospect of a bloodbath if the present interim prohibition is abruptly lifted.

Experience in recent times suggests that such a national bloodbath is improbable. While a householder questioned by a public opinion pollster is very apt to say that the death penalty should be used to put down crime, and while political

Stockholders should have their say

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)—There is only one way to stem the shady practices by managers of multimillion dollar companies.

That is shareholder action.

Most owners of stock, major and minor, routinely send in the proxies solicited by management. In practice, this means that the chairman of the board, the president and a few other company officers make the major decisions with little or no direction.

The main body of stockholders know little of what is going on. Elected directors, many of whom are operating officials of other major companies, usually have little time to determine what is going on.

It is a credit to the basic integrity of the men in upper management that so many firms are competently and honestly run despite this lack of oversight.

Now it is obviously impossible for the ordinary stockholder to assemble a group sufficiently large to capture a majority in most companies, or even a working block of 25 to 30 per cent.

But this reporter has studied cases in which determined stockholders owning a tiny per cent of the stock in a major firm have been able to achieve their objectives by the pressure of publicity they generated at stockholder meetings with well-founded demands for information.

Unfortunately, in the cases I've looked into, these amounted to one-shot operations, aimed at quick-fix solutions and not long-term remedies.

What's wanted is for groups of small or medium shareholders in companies to band together and elect one or more directors independent of company management but not tied down with 24-hour-a-day responsibilities to another company. With sufficient publicity, cogent arguments and the right candidates, this could be accomplished. Not the first go-round perhaps, but the second, third or fourth.

The ideal independent director could most logically be found in that growing group of able men and women retired from high posts in industry, government and the academic world, retirees who have proved their physical and mental ability to handle major decisions. Not all retirees would qualify, of course. But with the "65-and-out" rules prevalent in American business these days, there are many new retiring from high positions in the prime of mental life.

Banks and other institutions which manage trust and pension funds also have a role to play. It would seem to me that they have a responsibility, not to manage the companies whose stocks they hold, but to see that hanky panky is kept to a minimum. These managers could not, in many cases, act directly. But they would investigate the situation in the companies they're involved with and report to the owners of the stocks or the funds they're handling.

Everyone in the business—stockholders, large and small, managers of trust and pension funds, and all others in a position to influence the selection of directors and the management of companies—have the same responsibility that Congressional committees have in overseeing the activities of government agencies.

We have all learned by now that most operations, whether government or private, require some kind of watchdog. If we protest the excess of government regulations, as many of us do, then we must see to self regulation in those areas in which we have a say.

The old complaint that one man's vote and voice doesn't count has long since been shot down. The man or woman with one share or 100 usually can be heard at stockholder meetings. Unfortunately, questioning at these meetings has all too frequently been dominated by crackpots.

More insight on hairy chests

Dear Ann Landers: The letter to Elmer's wife was my laugh for the day. Why any woman would attach so much importance to the hair on a man's chest is a mystery to me.

My brother happened to have a very hairy chest and he was so proud of it he showed it off at every opportunity. He especially enjoyed displaying his bountiful growth in the presence of my husband who had very little hair on his chest.

One day I happened to run across a magazine article that surprised me. It said men with hairy chests were fooling themselves if they considered it a sign of manliness. The more hair on the chest (According to the person who wrote the article) the more female hormones the man had. He went on to say the hairy-chested male is more likely to produce female children while the less hairy-chested man is more apt to have sons. (My brother has four girls and one boy. We have three boys and one girl.)

After I showed that article to my brother he shrugged a lot less and kept his shirt buttoned more.—Last Laugh

Dear L.L.: That article may have solved an irritating problem for you, dear, but according to Dr. Norbert Freinkel, director of the Center for Endocrinology at Northwestern University Medical School, there is no convincing evidence that links the quantity of chest hair with the level of female or male sex hormones. Also, it has nothing whatever to do with the ability to have either boy or girl babies.

Dear Ann Landers: Things are different, Grandma. Boys and girls kiss in the halls at school, lie close to each other in the grass during lunch hour, smoke pot in the bathrooms and on the school steps, and hundreds of freshmen girls get pregnant every year." So spoke my 15-year-old granddaughter while trying desperately to make excuses for her second pregnancy by the same boy. This after having had two abortions.

Within six months the child has lost seven weeks of school. Her once healthy body is now anemic and she is always exhausted. She threatened suicide when her parents forbade her seeing the boy again.

Need I tell you I am heartbroken? My daughter has tried to be a good mother. Her husband is a fine, hard-working man. What does the future hold for a 15-year-old with such a tragic history?—Deeply Concerned in Corning, N.Y.

Dear Concerned: This child is clearly out of control and has been for quite some time. Her parents should get her into the hands of a competent therapist at once. Too bad this wasn't done immediately after the first abortion. Some professional was not doing his job.

Dear Ann Landers: I am getting fed to the gullet with your incessant, relentless harping on the evils of liquor. You are so hipped on the subject I wouldn't be surprised if you were a closet nipper yourself.

You are forever quoting physicians as your "authorities." Have you noticed, Ann, there are more old drunks around than old doctors? Print this one, if you can think of an answer.—Jim Beam

Dear Jim: Those old drunks you see around are a lot younger than they look. The booze is what aged 'em.

Think before it's too late

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Oswald: "Slow play is an abomination, but that doesn't mean that you shouldn't take time to think."

Jim: "I notice you have been slowing down as you get older. When we won the knockout teams at the Dallas Regional, we still had to wait for boards at each exchange. I suppose you have some hand in mind."

Oswald: "South really broke three records with today's hand. It took him less than one second to bid four and then seven notrump, and it took him just about the same time to throw the hand away in the play."

Jim: "I can see what he did. At trick two he played his ace of spades. Then, since East held all five spades and West all five hearts, he could never collect thirteen tricks. Had he stopped to think, he would have played the jack of spades from dummy. Then he would have been able to finesse twice against East's ten-nine. What was his

Why bother with extra plant care?

By JANET TARA
Seventh of a Series)

Providing proper care for plants does take some time and effort. But knowing the reasons for what you are doing may help develop your patience and determination.

Why bother to drain the excess water into the sink when it seeps through the bottom of the flower pot? Because this rids the soil of toxic salts and minerals that build up from tap water, natural soil changes and the necessary fertilizers that are added. Leaving the water in the saucer to evaporate doesn't do the job. The water containing the salts collects in the dish and rises back up into the pot as the soils dries.

Why give plants a weekly shower, especially since hanging plants are so difficult to move? Not only does this raise the humidity level, but it has indirect benefits. Bugs and diseases are encouraged by dusty, dirty leaves. House plants are not in their natural environment; gentle breezes don't keep the surrunding air moving and rain never washes the leaves. The once-a-week bath is really a necessity, not a luxury, although it calls for gentle handling of plants with long runners and leaves.

You should change a plant's soil approximately every two years whether or not it needs repotting to a bigger container. The earth gets "tired" and many of the nutrients washed away in watering are never replaced, even with fertilizing.

Sauteed corn

By AILEEN CLAIRE

Fresh corn makes a decided difference in the flavor of any recipe. Fortunately, fresh corn buds may eat corn-on-the-cob and use fresh corn for favorite recipes year round since Florida provides a constant flow of this American treat to markets until June. Then it's just a short wait until the local fresh corn begins to ripen. When buying fresh corn, store it in the refrigerator until ready to use. Corn left to stand unchilled for several days will become more starchy.

FRESH CORN SAUTE
3 ears fresh corn

Spicetop muffins

Perfect for a group because this hot bread tastes best fresh from the oven, not reheated.

1 1/2 cups flour, stir to aerate before measuring
2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup sugar
1 cup quick-cooking oats
1/2 cup raisins
1/4 cup chopped (medium-fine) pecans or walnuts
1 cup milk
1-3rd cup salad oil
1 egg, slightly beaten

Topping: In a large mixing bowl stir together the flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Stir in oats, raisins and nuts. Add milk, oil and egg; stir only until dry ingredients are moistened. Fill buttered muffin-pan cups (each 1-3rd cup capacity) two-thirds full. Sprinkle with the Topping. Bake in a preheated 425-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 12 to 15 minutes. Serve at once with butter. Makes 16.

Topping: Stir together 1/4 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar, 1/4 cup finely chopped pecans or walnuts and 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon.

Tell medic your fears

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — I consider myself a healthy, happy woman of 43 with a wonderful husband and family. I don't pay much attention to my aches and pains. I can put up with the occasional arthritic aches in hands and shoulders. Recently I have had some symptoms that have frightened me. Once I fainted, apparently for no reason, and once my right hand ceased to function at all for about two hours. I couldn't make it move or anything. I found out yesterday when a routine blood pressure was taken in the dentist's chair that my blood pressure was a little high, 150 over 98.

This is probably the case of a little knowledge being a bad thing because I fear a brain tumor. A year ago I had my annual checkup, but I hesitated to mention my fears to my doctor, no doubt it would have sounded silly. Also I understand the tests for brain tumor are quite painful. Am I over reacting?

DEAR READER — I am always amazed at how many patients avoid telling the doctor the thing that they are worried most about. Obviously the best way to get an answer is to ask a question. There are lots of things a doctor can do and usually does routinely on a good physical examination that would help him ascertain whether there was any real likelihood of your having a brain tumor or not. When he checks all your reflexes and notes even how you walk and stand he'll have some ideas of how your brain and nervous system is functioning.

When he looks in the back of the eyes he can see whether there is any evidence of increased pressure inside the brain. Since you didn't ask him and you probably had no signs to indicate such a thing he probably felt it totally unnecessary to suddenly tell you that you don't have any evidence of a brain tumor.

I can't say why you fainted. There are many reasons why people faint, from over breathing (hyperventilation) to emotional reactions, recent illnesses, prolonged standing or any number of things. Nor could I possibly tell you why you had some trouble moving your right hand. That too could have been a complication from hyperventilation, if you happened to have been anxious about something.

Your blood pressure reading was a little high, but I'd like to point out that one blood pressure reading does not give a true indication of what one's real blood pressure is.

If you really want to find out what your blood pressure is under normal circumstances have it taken under normal circumstances. Most people's pressure is often a little higher in the doctor's office than it is at home. Because of your concern and the inability to really pin down what the symptoms you have mentioned mean I think you ought to go to your family doctor and tell him what you're worried about and let him give you a proper examination and a good answer.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE G-461: Nina K., aged 30, is puzzled about the male sex hunger.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "you urge wives to become experts in concocting boudoir cheesecake."

"For you say men's erotic hunger is much greater than that of their wives."

"But if they have so much more libido, then why do we wives need to entice them with bedroom coquetry and all those other ingredients of boudoir cheesecake?"

"If they are ravenous for it, why do we need to further whet their erotic appetites for boudoir romancing?"

Paradoxical Males
This problem has puzzled wives ever since Adam and Eve's 10th wedding anniversary!

And most women figure that if their mates aren't pressuring them for boudoir romancing, then those men aren't hungry for erotic calories.

So here are a few axioms of male sexual psychology that you wives should memorize:

(1) Husbands are more likely to be creatures of habit, partly due to the fact they often operate on an "Agenda Plan."

So they expect their meals to be on schedule, even if they aren't particularly hungry.

Same goes for their indulgence in boudoir cheesecake!

(2) But most husbands also prefer to have their wives dine with them at the dinner table, for feminine companionship when eating has become an integral part of the usual husband's gastric enjoyment.

Likewise, the normal male expects to have an animated rather than a snoring mate when it comes to boudoir cheesecake.

"My wife doesn't fall asleep at the cookstove," husbands often grumble, "but she is snoring almost before her head strikes the pillow!"

(3) Husbands realize their wives tempt their gastric appetites at the dinner table by means of appetizers, sauces and exotic salad dressing.

In like manner, they expect their mates to be coquettish, saucy and enticing in regard to their "undressing" in the boudoir.

A sleepy, stodgy wife thus chokes off their ardor instead of inflaming it.

(4) Wives are too often subconsciously happy at this result but husbands grow irritated.

For the usual husband expects a little wifely pronography in his own bedroom, for that is part of the recipe for boudoir cheesecake.

Wives make a tragic mistake in thinking that if their mate isn't taking an immediate aggressive role in the boudoir, then he must not be desirous of boudoir cheesecake!

Wives, PLEASE memorize this axiom concerning the male libido: it is the woman's role to excite the man till he can function, while his task is merely to arouse his mate!

Because of wifely indifference and her failure to understand this attitude of men, he grows panicky at his inability to whet his own ardor by erotic imaginations or even lewd photographs.

So he then begins to phantasmize about other nude females and may ultimately consort with a paramour to make sure he can still function. Send for the booklet, "How To Prevent Impotence," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane, Hopkins Bldg., Melott, Ind. 47958, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

Expert on counter-culture dazzles audiences

DeKalb—Tom Wolfe dazzled Northern Illinois University.

The author of "The Painted Word," the "Electric Kool-Aid Acid Test" and other books spent two days at the NIU Fine Arts Festival and gave four separate talks on culture and counter-culture, art and literature, drawing crowds of up to 600 students, faculty and area residents. It was one of his rare public appearances.

Dressed to the teeth in a white silk suit—European style with navy pin stripes and four-button pearl cuffs, matching double-breasted vest, contrasted by sky blue shirt, and vest hankie—Wolfe lived up to the image of the famous New York author the audience expected.

Wolfe was interrupted by applause several times as he described in vivid detail the youth movements in the United States and Britain during the 1960's and early 1970's.

Wolfe said the working class youth of Britain express rebellion partly by unusual dress, "the ultimate ugly trip." Wolfe called them "skinheads" because they shave their hair to a stubble, wear baggy basket-seat pants and Army surplus tee-shirts.

Wolfe, who proved to the audience he could deliver in a lecture the same rapid, incisive and witty description that characterizes his books, called attention to the boots worn by skinheads:

"When I say boots, I don't want to give you the impression of some Yucatan peninsula dude triple-A hand-tooled Mexican boot, such as those favored by an entire generation of intelligentsia along Page Avenue in the Haight-Ashbury district of San Francisco . . .

"Nor do I want you to feel I'm talking about the marvelous elk boots with the mole skin lowers and the doe skin uppers and the Achilles tendon loop in the back for pulling on in the morning as you're hitchhiking down Route One outside the Esalen Institute trying to catch a free look at the skinny dippers in the hot springs who are paying $350 to $400 per week for the privilege of living in trailers while being turned on psychically . . .

"When I say boots, I mean clod hoppers, farm boots with metal plates on the toes and studs on the bottom . . . These boots worn by skinheads are used "to kick the daylight out of hippies and students," Wolfe told the audience.

Wolfe said "this is a very complex age today," more so than in the 1960's when "we only had greasers and surfers and motorcycle freaks."

"Today there are many social groups seeking superiority over each other," he said. For instance, the "hippies and kickers" of the Midwest are similar to the "collegiates and hitters" on the East Coast.

"The collegiates are the college-bound book-baggers who get A's in school. The hitters seem to exist for the sole purpose of raising welts on the collegiates."

In the South, there's a social split between the "plaid skirts and the grits (formerly called red necks)."

The plaid skirt tag is a throw back to proper high school girls who used to wear "the big safety pin in the back, a cardigan sweater with the silk stripe up the front, a page boy bob and clip-on earrings, a lollipop and Buster Brown collar—this tag now refers to society boys, with some derision intended," Wolfe said.

"We also have the lowest social creature in the history of the world, the bottom dog—the hippie grit, or Southern greaser."

"The hippie grit has the colossal affront to assume hip- pedom. He has the gall to wear head bands, to smoke a little dope and talk philosophy, all of which, as everybody knows, has been an exclusive middle class estate." The audience roared with laughter.

Wolfe offered four choices to straight people who wish to deal with the many choices of life styles available today.

"You can be like them—call them brothers and become a socialist and call for revolution. You can join the third great awakening, the religious revival which is taking us out of the status movement. Or, you can use the British approach. Look at each life style, consider them carefully, and head for high ground."

A keen observer of details, Wolfe is aware of the eccentric impression he conveys in his flashy white suits, which he wears as a badge of harmless aggression. He owns 18 white suits.

"I blundered into white suits," he said. "When I arrived in New York, I went to a tailor and ordered a white silk tweed suit, which turned out to be too hot to wear in the summer."

"I wore it the next winter and it annoyed people. Many people are irritated by minute variations in dress, such as white in winter. This appealed to me as a harmless form of aggression. And, getting dressed in the morning was fun for a change."

Since the movie "The Great Gatsby," white suits have become very popular. "But I expect to outlive the popularity," he smiled.

Wolfe said he is working on a new book about American astronauts, to be called "The Real Stuff." His research has taken him on board a space shuttle craft simulator, on which he said he "crashed" in the Mohave desert.

Wolfe is a native of Richmond, Va., and still carries the remnants of a Virginia drawl when he speaks rapidly. Usually, his voice is Midwestern, and at times, Eastern, pronouncing "error" like "era." The son of a university agriculture professor, Wolfe graduated from Washington and Lee University with a major in English, and earned a doctorate in American Studies from Yale in 1957.

He presently lives in New York City, where he says he still enjoys a "taxi ride through Manhattan at two in the morning, looking up at the tall buildings."

He worked as a reporter for the Washington Post and the New York Herald Tribune and has written many articles for Esquire and Harper's Bazaar magazines.

Paid by Ford to rate Reagan's TV attack

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP)—People are being paid by the President Ford election committee to watch a replay of Ronald Reagan's nationally telecast attack on their man.

But, a committee spokesman says there's nothing unusual about it at all—it's just an ordinary voter research study.

Reagan delivered his address March 31 on NBC. In it, the former California governor sharply criticized Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Now, in Carbondale and nine other communities, Ford's people are paying Republicans and independents $7.50 to sit through another showing.

Peter Kaye, press secretary for the Ford committee in Washington, said in an interview Friday that the organization had hired Detroit-based Market Opinion Research, Inc., to handle the project.

"They do all our polling and research," he said. "This is done all the time. It's a kind of technique we use all the time."

Before the curtain rises, viewers are asked in a questionnaire their opinion of Ford's performance in office and Reagan's popularity. During the show they register degrees of agreement and disagreement with Reagan's statements on a button-studded electronic box. When the lights come up, they fill out a questionnaire. As they leave, envelopes with the money are distributed.

If the test works, it will show what Reagan's doing right and doing wrong, at least to the voters' way of thinking. Obviously, Kaye said, that's something the Ford campaign would like to know.

Use of an opponent's speech is one of the simpler ways to gather the data, Kaye said.

"There are all kinds of ways," he said. "This is one of the less exotic and more obvious."

The film was shown to small audiences in a Southern Illinois University Theater Wednesday and Thursday and was scheduled for screening again today and Tuesday.

A Republican party worker said that at first it was to be shown only to GOP regulars but the doors were opened to independents when audiences proved disappointingly slim.

FOCUS

The "King's English"

If you speak of the "king's English," the "naked truth," or "catching a cold," you can thank the Bard of Avon for a part of your vocabulary. This 16th Century English dramatist, whose plays have been translated into more languages than any other book except the Bible, also gave us such words as "monumental," "assassination," and "eventful." This week more than 1,000 of his admirers are expected to gather in Washington, D.C., for an international meeting that will celebrate the dramatist's 412th birthday. The purpose of the Bicentennial year meeting is to study America's English cultural heritage through the words of the famous Bard.

DO YOU KNOW — Who is known as the Bard of Avon?

Tollway death rate lowest in nation

CHICAGO (AP) — The Illinois state tollway system had the lowest death rate in the nation in 1975 among nine comparable systems, according to figures released by the National Safety Council.

The council said Sunday that Illinois' fatality rate of 0.6 per million vehicle miles was the lowest among nine tollway systems that log more than one billion vehicles miles annually.

Don Zimmer, chief engineer for the Illinois State Toll Highway Authority, said the state's 1975 rate represented a 53.8 per cent drop from the previous year.

The other eight systems studied were New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Connecticut, Ohio, Florida, Massachusetts and the Garden State Parkway system, the council said.

Zimmer attributed the low rate in Illinois to new safety features instituted this year. They included 70 miles of new concrete median barriers to help prevent head-on collisions, 1,500 new crash cushions covering fixed objects and new signs, he said.

Montreal wipes out Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — One thing you can say for the Montreal Canadiens is that they don't kick a guy when he's down. The Canadiens wiped out the Chicago Black Hawks in four straight games in their best-of-seven quarter-final playoffs with a 4-1 triumph in the only Sunday game in the National Hockey League.

But the winners couldn't say enough nice things about the losers.

"... they (the Hawks) had always to play from behind, but they kept the pressure on us in the last three games and really made us work," said Pete Mahovich, who scored the tie-breaking goal Sunday night late in the second period. "We did not have an easy time because they certainly skated as well as we did."

Montreal Coach Ken Dryden chimed in: "The Hawks certainly have a better hockey team than the scores indicated. But for us, it was playing well together and doing the right thing at the right time. In all honesty, there was very little difference in the play of either team, except for the first game."

And Montreal Coach Scotty Bowman claimed, "We certainly did not overpower the Black Hawks in this series. It's pretty tough to win four straight games from anybody.... We beat a good hockey team tonight, one that never gave up."

The other quarter-final series are still underway with all three sets tied 2-2. Saturday night, the New York Islanders dumped the Buffalo Sabres 4-2, the Toronto Maple Leafs beat the Philadelphia Flyers 4-3 and the Boston Bruins blanked the Los Angeles Kings 3-0. The next round for each series comes Tuesday.

Black Hawks Coach Billy Reay chose not to look back over the series but to comment on Sunday night's game.

"The turning point came tonight late in the first period when we had a one-man advantage and were leading 1-0. But Dick Redmond, instead of passing the bloody puck during a collision, tried to stick-handle his way through three Montreal players.

"As it was, he got knocked down and there was nobody to help out (goalie) Tony Esposito."

Mahovich's go-ahead goal in the second period came when he took a pass from Steve Shutt in a power-play situation and calmly stroked the puck into the net. Mahovich assisted on another goal midway in the final period when he stole the puck from Dale Tallon and passed it to Guy Lafleur, who scored from 12 feet out.

The Black Hawks were able to score only three times in all four playoff games.

Bowman said, "Anytime you eliminate another team in four games, you've got to be a little lucky."

Walnut splits pair

WALNUT— Five extra-base hits, including a home run and double, by Ken Wilcoxon powered the Walnut Blue Raiders to an opening game 13-8 victory, here, Saturday in a doubleheader against the La Salle-Peru Cavaliers in high school baseball action.

L-P took advantage of 11 walks and a dozen Walnut errors to claim the nightcap 25-4 in five innings. The Blue Raiders put the first contest on ice with 10 runs in the fifth inning. Mike Mungor walked before Wilcoxon doubled. Doug Parker then doubled for two RBI.

Four walks preceded a double by Perino. Tim Renner then singled before Wilcoxon unloaded a three-run homer. Rick Middleton added to the Walnut extra-base hit total with a triple. Mungor picked up the victory.

Wilcoxon doubled and tripled in a losing cause for the Blue Raiders in the second game. L-P jammed five extra-base hits, including a triple and homer by Bill Kelfey plus a John Groleau home run, among 13 safeties.

Win 15-14 and lose 6-4 Saturday

Redmen divide pair with Clinton

By MIKE CUNIFF
Telegraph Sports Editor

SAUK VALLEY— A baseball fan did not need to travel to Wrigley Field in Chicago Saturday to see plenty of hits, runs scored and action. The Sauk Valley diamond would have presented a viewer with all the excitement one wanted or needed.

The Redmen battled from a 9-0 deficit to cop the opening game, 15-14, via six runs in the bottom of the seventh (and final) inning against Clinton. The visitors then retaliated by plating a half dozen tallies of their own in the last frame of the nightcap to grasp a 6-4 triumph.

A total of 42 hits were pounded out in the junior college doubleheader played under sandstorm-laden skies and billowing winds. The split moves the Sauk Valley season slate to 3-4, with the Redmen traveling to Moline Tuesday for another twinbill with Black Hawk.

Brad Pyse notched the victory in the opener for Sauk Valley with 5 and 2-3rds innings of solid relief work. Pyse entered after Clinton shelled Redmen starter Jim Baumgart for nine runs in the first 14 batters.

Clinton got four runs in the first on a walk, a Jim Dose single that carried off the third base bag, a bloop single by Don Wallace to left, a two-run double by Tom Schnack into the left-center gap plus a single by Al Eversoll, also into the left-center alley, that drove in Schnack.

Five more tallies brought on Pyse with one out in the second. A walk, a two-run homer by lead-off man Bill Bender, a single by Wallace, a walk and a three-run blast by Eversoll on Baumgart's first offering boosted the visitors advantage to 9-0.

The Redmen finally got on the board as Doug Mitchell cracked a grand slam homer in the bottom of the second. A single through the hole by Rick Beattie, a bloop one-base hit to left by Craig Robinson and a free pass to Pyse loaded the sacks for Mitchell.

The first baseman from Tampico jumped on Bender's first pitch and lined the ball over the left-field fence. Sauk Valley made it 9-6 in the third as Beattie got a free pass on a 3-2 pitch, after two were out, before Robinson beat out a single off the glove of Bender.

Pyse lined a double that the Clinton center fielder could not control for the runs. Mitchell then blooped a single to right and Maurie Remmers walked, but Bender got a strikeout to escape further damage.

A throwing error by Redmen catcher Tom Cain presented Clinton with its 10th run in the fourth, but Sauk Valley once again nicked Bender for a pair of tallies in its turn at bat. After Doug Queckboerner was safe on an error, Tom Houzenga lined a ball that popped out of a leaping left fielder's glove, hit the top of the fence and bounced over for a two-run homer.

Pyse had his only shaky inning in the fifth as Clinton pushed across four runs. A walk, a ground-rule RBI double by Dose, a two-run homer by Wallace to left, a double by Schnack that hugged the left-field line and an RBI single by Jim Malone provided the scoring.

A double by Mitchell and a broken bat RBI single by Queckboerner narrowed the Redmen deficit to 14-9 in the Sauk Valley fifth. Pyse blanked the visitors in the last two frames and then led off the Redmen seventh by reaching on an error.

Another error and a walk loaded the bases. The Clinton coach then brought the infield in and Mark Eatmen made the tactical move backfire by bouncing a pitch inches over the leaping second baseman that went for a double and chased across three tallies.

Queckboerner advanced Eatman to third with a looper to center for a single before Houzenga forced Queckboerner at second, with Eatman scoring on the play. Cain got a single when the Clinton shortstop knocked down his smash but could not make a play.

Robinson deadlocked the contest at 14-14 with his fourth hit of the game—a bloop to left—that plated Houzenga. Pyse's grounder was then fumbled by the shortstop as Cain roared across with the winning run.

Pyse allowed five runs and the same number of hits in picking up the win. The right-hander walked six and struck out three. Baumgart had given up nine runs, seven hits, walked three and whiffed a pair in his short stint.

In the nightcap, the Redmen scored three times in the third and once in the fourth, only to have the visitors tally all their runs in the seventh to pull out the victory.

Clinton utilized three walks and a trio of consecutive hits plus an outfield error for the winning runs. Sauk Valley got its runs as Houzenga walked, Mitchell was safe on an error while sacrificing, and Robinson walked in the third. Cain singled in a pair of tallies and the third marker scored on the throw in.

Houzenga singled in Queckboerner in the fourth for the final Redmen run.

What advantage?

Both teams were eliminated from the NBA playoffs Sunday in the type of games in which the home-court advantage is supposed to be most prominent — close, hard-fought, pressure-packed contests, where everything is on the line. Both were playing before enthusiastic crowds at their home arenas — and both were beaten.

The Buffalo Braves, trailing by as many as 11 points in the third period, nipped Philadelphia 124-123 in overtime; the Detroit Pistons, whose 36-46 regular season record equals the worst of any team ever to reach the NBA playoffs, edged Milwaukee 107-104.

Both were the deciding games of best-of-three preliminary round series, and the survivors are now matched against the top clubs in the two conferences. Detroit opens its best-of-seven series against the defending NBA champion Golden State Warriors in Oakland Tuesday and Buffalo begins play against the Boston Celtics in Boston Wednesday.

In the only other NBA playoff game Sunday, the Phoenix Suns beat the Seattle SuperSonics 103-91 to take a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven quarter-final series.

The fourth quarter-final matchup, between the Cleveland Cavaliers and Washington Bullets, resumes Wednesday night in Landover, Md., with Cleveland holding a 2-1 advantage in the best-of-seven set.

John Shumate, who is getting used to bouncing out of hospital beds, made one of his fastest recoveries over the weekend — and it proved fatal to the 76ers. Shumate, who sat out last season with a blood disease, was felled by a wayward elbow Saturday night. He suffered a concussion, needed four stitches and spent the night in Buffalo's Millard Fillmore Hospital.

But when tap time rolled around Sunday, the rugged rookie forward was back in uniform for Buffalo. And he responded with 43 solid minutes, scoring 11 of his 23 points in the fourth quarter and four in overtime, when the Braves needed them the most.

Shumate, who hit 10 of 12 shots from the field and grabbed 10 rebounds, said he felt dizzy and tired during the fourth period and was a little woozy during the overtime. But the patient survived; it was the 76ers who died.

He ably supported superstar Bob McAdoo, who was his usual self with 34 points and 22 rebounds. McAdoo, who had 15 points in the third period as the Braves erased an 11-point deficit, sent the game into overtime — after Philadelphia had scored six in a row — by sinking a pair of free throws with just one second left on the clock after being fouled by Clyde Lee of the 76ers.

Bob Lanier scored 28 points for the Pistons and Curtis Rowe 20, but it was a steal and a basket by Chris Ford with 18 seconds left which finally beat the Bucks.
